

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

1 The present invention relates to a process for examining an object, whereby properties of the
2 object are detected at different times within a spatial frequency space formed by spatial frequencies.
3 The process is carried out in such a way that consecutive images are recorded in overlapping areas
4 of the spatial frequency space and, additionally, in areas of the spatial frequency space that differ from 5 each other.